

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

FILED
CLERK
1/4/2016

U.S. DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK
LONG ISLAND OFFICE

-----X
:
BRENDON COSTELLO, :
:
Plaintiff, : 15-CV-2506 (JFB) (AKT)
:
: December 15, 2015
:
V. : Central Islip, NY
:
CITY OF LONG BEACH, :
:
Defendant. :
-----X

TRANSCRIPT OF CIVIL CAUSE FOR DECISION
BEFORE THE HONORABLE JOSEPH F. BIANCO
UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

APPEARANCES:

For the Plaintiff: RICK OSTROVE, ESQ.
BRANDON OKANO, ESQ.

For the Defendant: RICHARD FINKEL, ESQ.

Audio Operator:

Court Transcriber: ARIA SERVICES, INC.
c/o Elizabeth Barron
102 Sparrow Ridge Road
Carmel, NY 10512
(845) 260-1377

Proceedings recorded by electronic sound recording,
transcript produced by transcription service

1 THE CLERK: Calling 15-CV-2506, Costello v.
2 City of Long Beach, et al.

3 Counsel, please state your appearance for 4 the record.

5 MR. OSTROVE: For the plaintiff, Rick
6 Ostrove of Leeds Brown Law, along with Brandon Okano.

7 MR. FINKEL: For the City of Long Beach and
8 the individual defendant Jack Schnirman, Richard Finkel
9 and Howard Miller of Bond Schoeneck & King. Good
10 afternoon, your Honor.

11 THE COURT: Good afternoon. As you know, I
12 scheduled the conference because I wanted to place the 13 Court's oral ruling on the record with respect to the 14 pending motion to dismiss. It should take about ten 15 minutes to do that. If you want to order a copy of the 16 transcript, you can do so through the clerk's office.
17 It's placed on the recording system here in the 18 courtroom.

19 The Court has carefully considered the 20 defendant's motions to dismiss. As a threshold matter,
21 the motion to dismiss the individual defendant Jack
22 Schnirman was not opposed, so I grant that application
23 to respect to Mr. Schnirman.

24 The City of Long Beach has moved to dismiss
25 the claims against it, arguing that the state court's

1 determination in the Article 78 proceeding has claim in
2 issue and preclusive effect and that the plaintiff
3 fails to assert well-pled facts to support his claims
4 that his termination was politically motivated. For 5 reasons set forth in a minute, I'm denying the City's 6 motion in its entirety.

7 With respect to the motion to dismiss
8 standard, I won't belabor the record by quoting it in 9 any great details. Both parties obviously agree that 10 the Court must accept the factual allegations set forth
11 in the complaint as true and draw all reasonable
12 inferences in plaintiff's favor. Cleveland v. Caplaw
13 Enterprises (ph), 448 F.3d 518 at 521 (Second Circuit 14 2006). And under the Iqbal/Twombly standard, it's 15 well-settled that in order to survive a motion to 16 dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6), a complaint must allege a 17 plausible set of facts sufficient to raise a right to 18 relief above the speculative level, Operating Local 649
19 Trust Fund v. Smith Barney Fund Management, LLC, 595
20 F.3d 86 at page 91 (Second Circuit 2010), quoting Bell
21 Atlantic Corporation v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544 at 555
22 (2007).

23 As the Supreme Court made clear in Twombly,
24 the standard does not require heightened fact pleading
25 of specifics but only enough facts to state a claim to

1 relief that is plausible on its fact. That's at page
2 570 of the Twombly decision. Applying that standard
3 here, I'm denying the motion.

4 First, I want to address the defense
5 argument that res judicata applies to certain of the 6 plaintiff's claims. The parties agree that the 7 plaintiff's claims for reinstatement, back pay,
8 injunctive relief and attorney's fees associates with 9 the Article 78 proceeding are precluded by res judicata
10 and should be dismissed. The defendant concedes that 11 emotional damages are not precluded by res judicata.
12 Therefore, I understand the remaining dispute to be 13 whether front pay and attorney's fees associated with 14 this action are precluded by res judicata.

15 Under the doctrine of res judicata,
16 otherwise known as plain preclusion, a final judgment
17 on the merits of an action precludes the parties or 18 their privies from relitigating issues that were or 19 could have been raised in that action. I'm quoting
20 Flattery v. Lang, 199 F.3d 607 at 612 (Second Circuit 21 1999), quoting other Supreme Court cases. The doctrine 22 only applies if, one, the previous action involved an 23 adjudication on the merits; two, the previous action
24 involved the plaintiffs or those in privity with them;
25 and three, the claims asserted in the subsequent action

1 were or could have been raised in the prior action.

2 Monahan v. New York City Department of Corrections, 214
3 F.3d 275 at 285 (Second Circuit 2000).

4 As the Second Circuit has made clear, and
5 I'm quoting now, "In determining whether a second suit
6 is barred by this doctrine, the fact that the first and 7 second suits involved the same parties, similar legal 8 issues, similar facts or essentially the same type of 9 wrongful conduct is not dispositive." Maharaj v. Bank
10 of America Corporation, 128 F.3d 94 at page 97 (Second 11 Circuit 1997). As that court made clear, again that 12 same page, "Rather, the first judgment would preclude a
13 second suit only when it involves the same transaction
14 or connected series of transactions as the earlier
15 suit."

16 With respect to damages and issues of res
17 judicata and damages, again, the Second Circuit has 18 spoken to this issue and has said the following,
19 quoting, "A New York plaintiff is not barred from 20 seeking damages in federal court on civil rights claims
21 by reason of a prior judgment on the same underlying
22 facts in an Article 78 proceeding requesting injunctive
23 or affirmative relief. The reason is that damages are 24 not available in these circumstances in an Article 78
25 proceeding. Therefore, that action cannot give the

1 damages relief demanded in a civil rights suit such as
2 this one." Davis v. Halpern, 813 F.2d 37 at page 39
3 (Second Circuit 1987), quoting other cases.

4 Obviously, as I said, there's agreement that
5 obviously emotional damages would not be precluded
6 under that standard because of the unavailability in an 7 Article 78 proceeding. I similarly conclude that the 8 defendant has cited no case to me that suggests that 9 front pay is an available remedy in connection with an 10 Article 78 proceeding in this type of situation or this 11 type of issue.

12 In the absence of any such case law that
13 makes that clear to me, I do not believe res judicata
14 would bar plaintiff's claims for front pay and 15 certainly would not bar attorney's fees associated with 16 this action. Obviously, he could not recover
17 attorney's fees for this action in an Article 78
18 proceeding. They were not and could not have been 19 raised and decided in that proceeding. For those 20 reasons, the motion under res judicata as to those 21 categories of damages is denied.

22 Moving to collateral estoppel, collateral
23 estoppel issue preclusion means simply that when an 24 issue of ultimate fact has once been determined by a
25 valid and final judgment, that issue cannot be

1 litigated between the same parties in any future
2 lawsuit. I'm quoting Leather v. Ten Eyck, 180 F.3d 420
3 at page 424 (Second Circuit 1899), quoting other cases.
4 Under New York law, collateral estoppel bars
5 relitigation of an issue when, one, the identical issue
6 necessarily was decided in the prior action and is 7 decisive of the present action; and two, the party to 8 be precluded from relitigating the issue had a full and 9 fair opportunity to litigate this issue in the prior
10 action, quoting from In Re: Hyman, 502 F.3d 61 at page
11 65 (Second Circuit 2007).

12 With respect to Article 78 proceedings,
13 again, it's clear that collateral estoppel may bar
14 consideration in Section 1983 cases of an issue that 15 was previously decided in Article 78 proceedings,
16 provided that the plaintiff raised the issue and the 17 issue was actually and necessarily decided by the 18 court. I'm quoting Leo v. New York City Department of 19 Education, 2014 W.L. 6460704 (E.D.N.Y. 2014), quoting
20 Second Circuit law.

21 Applying that standard here, I find that
22 plaintiff's claims are not precluded by collateral
23 estoppel because whether Mr. Costello was terminated as 24 political retaliation in violation of his 25 constitutional rights was not an issue that was

1 actually and necessarily decided in the Article 78
2 proceeding. The defendant focuses on the fact that the 3 plaintiff argued his Article 78 petition and that he
4 was terminated in bad faith. In particular, defendant
5 points to plaintiff's allegations that the "City
6 abolished his position in bad faith as a subterfuge
7 pretext to remove him from his position, though grounds
8 for his removal were nonexistent."

9 The defendant also points to the state
10 court's finding that "The allegations of the petition
11 are insufficient to either overcome respondent city's 12 bona fide reasons for abolishing/failing to fund
13 petitioner's position or to raise a factual question on 14 the issue of bad faith which would require a trial."
15 This is Exhibit 1, page 10.

16 I conclude after reviewing the record and
17 the Article 78 decision -- I agree with Mr. Ostrove's
18 position as articulated in the briefs and at oral 19 argument that these references to bad faith and the 20 propriety of Costello's termination are limited to the 21 term "bad faith" in the specific context of the civil 22 service law, where that term has a particular
23 definition. They do not demonstrate that the Article 24 78 court actually and necessarily decided the issue of 25 political retaliation. In fact, a review of the record

1 suggests the opposite. Neither plaintiff's Article 78
2 petition nor the court's decision mentioned political 3 retaliation. And in defining what petitioner is 4 required to show in order to establish bad faith, the 5 court said only that he must show "that his position
6 was not eliminated for bona fide reasons, i.e. savings
7 were not accomplished or a new replacement employee was 8 hired and performed substantially the same duties as 9 the discharged employee." That's at page 6 of Exhibit
10 I with respect to the decision. I believe that that is 11 basically a limiting definition of what bad faith means 12 in this context and certainly does not analyze whether 13 or not there's any political retaliation.

14 Furthermore, in concluded that Costello did
15 not make this showing, the court said that Costello
16 failed "to satisfy his burden of establishing bad faith
17 on the part of respondent city by eliminating bona fide
18 reasons for the elimination of his position by showing 19 that no savings were accomplished or by establishing 20 that someone was hired to replace him. That's at page
21 9 of the decision.

22 In contrast to some of the cases the 23 defendant cites, there is no development of facts
24 related to or analysis of Costello's claims of 25 retaliation in the decision. Both the petition and the

1 Court's decision focus on the economic aspects of
2 Costello's position and termination. Moreover, a
3 finding that the determination was rational does not 4 preclude the possibility the political retaliation was 5 also a motivating factor. They are not mutually 6 exclusive determinations.

7 It is possible that the defendant's decision
8 to terminate the plaintiff was politically motivated
9 even though the Article 78 court found another
10 articulated basis to be sufficiently stated in terms of 11 the bona fide reason. A plaintiff can prove a First
12 Amendment retaliation claim even if the measures taken
13 were otherwise justified. See for example Vargas v.
14 City of New York, 377 F.2d 2000 (Second Circuit 2004),
15 as well as Beechwood Restorative Care Center v. Leeds, 16 436 F.3d 147 (Second Circuit 2006). So the motion to 17 dismiss on that ground is denied.

18 Finally, moving to defendant's argument that
19 the complaint fails to plead facts sufficient to show
20 that Costello's termination violated his rights to 21 freedom of political association and right to freedom
22 of an intimate association, I deny the motion on that 23 ground as well. To prove a First Amendment retaliation
24 claim, the plaintiff must demonstrate three elements:
25 One, that he engaged in constitutionally protected

1 speech because he spoke as a citizen on a matter of
2 public concern; two, he suffered an adverse employment
3 action; and three, the speech was a motivating factor
4 in the adverse employment decision. This is set forth
5 in one of my prior decisions, Monet v. Nassau County
6 (ph), 2015 W.L. 1469982 (E.D.N.Y. 2015), citing Second
7 Circuit law.

8 In connection with this motion, defendant
9 focuses on the third element, arguing that plaintiff
10 has failed to adequately plead facts that would show
11 defendant knew of his political affiliation. I find
12 that the complaint sets forth facts sufficient to plead
13 a First Amendment retaliation and intimate association
14 claim, again highlighting the fact that the Court has 15 to accepts the facts as true, draw all reasonable
16 inferences in the plaintiff's favor and then determine
17 whether or not a plausible claim exists, including 18 whether or not it's plausible that the defendants knew
19 of his political affiliation.

20 Plaintiff alleges in the complaint in
21 paragraph 14 that his political affiliation was well-
22 known, that he attended several public functions hosted 23 by the Republican Party, made several donations to the 24 Republican Party, made comments regarding his political 25 beliefs on social media and discussed his affiliation

1 and views with others. Plaintiff in other paragraphs,
2 9 and 10, 14 through 18, 26, 34, 35 and 42 through 57,
3 alleges essentially that an inference can be drawn that
4 the defendant was aware of his political associations
5 from the timing of the events surrounding his 6 termination. Based upon those allegations and, again,
7 utilizing any reasonable inferences that can be drawn
8 in plaintiff's favor, there are certainly sufficient
9 facts to allege a plausible claim of retaliation,
10 including knowledge of his political affiliation.

11 I could reach a similar conclusion with 12 respect to the intimate association claim. First of 13 all, I don't believe it is redundant of the political 14 affiliation. Whether a plaintiff was terminated for 15 his own political affiliation or the affiliation of his 16 mother are two distinct claims. Plaintiff is not 17 required -- one doesn't necessarily require proof of 18 the other. Plaintiff alleges the defendant knew his 19 mother was a politically active Republican and she 20 herself was terminated around the time that the 21 Democrats gained control of the city council. That's 22 in paragraphs 14, 39 and 40 and 34 through 37. I
23 believe the allegations set forth are sufficient to 24 allege a plausible intimate association as well.

25 In short, viewing the facts alleged in the

1 complaint in the light most favorable to plaintiff, I
2 conclude that plaintiff has sufficiently pled plausible
3 claims against the City of Long Beach that survive a
4 motion to dismiss. Therefore, the motion is denied in 5 its entirety.

6 I'm going to obviously let Judge Tomlinson
7 know that the Court has resolved this motion. Has a
8 conference been set before her? Has that already 9 happened, Mr. Ostrove?

10 MR. OSTROVE: Yes, we had a conference and 11 we are engaged in document discovery as we speak.

12 THE COURT: Okay, good. So the case has 13 already moved along somewhat. Is there anything else
14 for today from plaintiff's counsel?

15 MR. OSTROVE: Nothing, your Honor.

16 MR. FINKEL: Sorry, Judge, Rich Finkel for 17 the defendants, and I think I know the answer. You're 18 stating that the motion was denied in its entirety.
19 I'm assuming that that means that because the parties
20 agreed to certain claims being dismissed, that you
21 didn't address that.

22 THE COURT: Are you talking about in terms
23 of the individual defendant or are you talking about 24 the other claims as well?

25 MR. FINKEL: The reinstatement, the back

1 pay, the injunctive relief.

2 THE COURT: Yeah. I assumed those were
3 withdrawn.

4 I'm considering those to be withdrawn,
5 right, Mr. Ostrove?

6 MR. OSTROVE: The other damage claims.

7 THE COURT: Right.

8 MR. OSTROVE: (Ui) on the record.

9 THE COURT: So when I say I'm granting the 10 motion, I'm granting it because those were withdrawn.
11 But the order will make clear -- when we issue the 12 order, it will make clear that -- just repeat those 13 again so I can make sure we have it correct in the 14 order, Mr. Finkel.

15 MR. FINKEL: Judge, my understanding is that 16 the claims against the individual defendant are 17 dismissed as unopposed.

18 THE COURT: Right.

19 MR. FINKEL: And the claims for 20 reinstatement, back pay, injunctive relief and 21 attorney's fees on the Article 78 are either dismissed
22 or withdrawn, I'm not sure which, on res judicata
23 grounds.

24 THE COURT: Right.

25 Correct, Mr. Ostrove?

1 MR. OSTROVE: I believe that's correct. I
2 believe that what's left is emotional damages, front
3 pay and attorney's fees.

4 THE COURT: Correct. The other claims are
5 withdrawn and the claims against the city that remain,
6 the category of damages are emotional damages, front
7 pay and attorney's fees in connection with this action,
8 okay?

9 MR. FINKEL: Thank you, Judge.

10 THE COURT: Thank you. Have a good day.

11 * * * * *

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

19

20

21

22

23

24

25

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25

I certify that the foregoing is a correct transcript from the electronic sound recording of the proceedings in the above-entitled matter.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'EB', with a long horizontal stroke extending to the right.

ELIZABETH BARRON

December 24, 2015